Join us for a morning of thought-provoking presentations from. All bases are covered from writing for beginner-level college students to those learning language in different ways to service learning. If you are curious about how AI is involved in language learning, we have that covered as well. If you are curious about poster presentations and what that may entail, we have that covered.

Emi Hennessy will be starting our program with a preview of her JALT2024 presentation. Following will be Dale Jeffery will be doing a poster presentation that he recently gave at a conference in New York City at Columbia University. Closing out the trio of presenters is Kelly King who will discussing service learning and engaging local immigrant/migrant communities. All these topics resonate with either our current or collective situations.

Each presenter will present for 25-minutes. After, there will be 5 minutes for immediate questions and answers. There will also be 15-minutes after all three presentations are complete for further discussion. We are looking forward to having you in attendance for this great event!!!!
